

Domestic Violence Awareness Month Wrap Up from your Friendly Neighborhood CEO

As Domestic Violence Awareness Month (DVAM) comes to a close, I'm reminded of the critical role awareness plays in our community. At this month's Sneaker Ball, attendees learned more about our Housing Program and were amazed at the depth of our work and commitment to survivors. Many people we meet in the community don't realize who we are or that we've been serving the south suburbs for nearly 45 years.

Over the past two days, I had the privilege of returning to my training role, presenting to healthcare providers in the Advocate Hospital network. They emphasized the importance of recognizing domestic violence and supporting patients who are experiencing abuse. They shared personal and professional stories, grateful for the insights and to learn about Anew and all we have to offer.

As we wrap up this month, let's not stop raising awareness. We need each of you as ambassadors all year round. You never know when you'll impact a life simply by ensuring people know that Anew is here to help.

In peace,

Jennifer
